

Elisete - Give love a chance

Give love a chance - That is all Elisete asks for: Give love a chance. So basic, so important, so easy. The love that Elisete offers, in fact, urges us to give and receive is a universal, selfless love. A love that contains within it all the other types - love for ourselves first and foremost, love for others, acceptance of the other, love for nature, animals and plants and especially for life wherever they are.

Elisete sees herself first as a human being, as a citizen of the world. She is an ambassador of love for others and nature because we are all one great soul. She believes that the values derived from love should be a candle to our feet so that we can progress to a happier and more positive world and she sings these values from the bottom of her soul in the hope that we will hear.

The album was created during a challenging period of a global pandemic. The rainforests are burning, a plague is raging, people are suffering and dying, money is being used as a tool to strike and not as a tool to heal, people are acting out of ego and fear and thus guaranteeing themselves pain. The earth seems to repay us for the disgraceful treatment we give her. Elisete devotes a lot of thought to the responsibility of us humans for the situation and the path to correction. The song - 'It is time' that Elisete sings with her daughter Alin Retter was written as a tribute of encouragement in the difficult times we experience and the whole album is a reflection on human nature in good times and difficult times and on the road to love and union. She invites us to see that universal love and the recognition that we are all one is the cure.

Like Elisete, the album is cosmopolitan and embraces a variety of languages and themes - love in all its colors, nature conservation with an emphasis on the Amazon, acceptance of others, tolerance, patience and lots of joy. The rhythms are poppy and sweeping with folk touches and the songs are written in Hebrew, Italian, English and Russian while the Portuguese makes guest appearances in parts of the songs.

Elisete wrote and composed all the songs except for one of the two bonus songs - 'A Good Thought' written by Arik Shahar and which she especially loved and created for him an exciting performance. Raz Burg arranged all the songs except two that were arranged by Ron Laor and Elisete. The wonderful guitars in the songs belong to Arik Shahar and Ron Laor. The album has two bonus songs - Elisete's song for wearing the mask and Arik Shahar's 'A Good Thought' that Elisete sings. The music videos for the songs were created by the Italian director Robbie Laville, who has been accompanying Elisete for many years.

Elisete is a diverse and productive artist and works energetically to positively show Israel to the world with her charm and the seven languages she speaks. She lectures, is interviewed and performs in Israel and abroad, she is active in the media and in the field of music and promoting the desire for peace, she has an Internet blog - 'Elisete on the Morning' and she is broadcasting her music radio program on various internet radio stations.

'Give love a chance' is the eighth album Elisete has released so far.
